HERITAGE HUB AT IRONWORKS

Report by Clare Butler

AN HISTORIC former ironworks is set to be brought back into use as a heritage centre and base for healthcare training.

An application has been lodged with Dudley Council to transform Riverside House, next to the Stourbridge Canal, into a heritage centre with cafe, restaurant and craft shop selling local produce.

The Riverside Stourbridge Community Interest Company would also work with adults in health and social care to help them develop confidence and practical skills from the site.

The works in its heyday

Lloyd Stacey, managing director, said work would get under way in the next six months. More than £80,000 funding is already in place.

He explained: "This is an amazing project that will transform the area. This old ironworks is one of the most important sites in Dudley in terms of historical and national significance.

"We are taking on the old iron master's house and his estate along with ancillary workshops, including the remnants of the stables and outbuildings. All being well we will start building work within the next six months."

Forum

The plans also feature a rest space, canteen area, kitchen and woodland.

Mr Stacey continued: "The building will have round porthole-style windows to match the nearby Lion Health Medical Centre and an overhanging green roof to provide extra shelter. So far we have had £82,000 funding from different regional and national funders and also the council community forum.

"The other side of this is working with adults in health and social care to help them develop skills. This is a place where heritage, community and culture can be seriously integrated with provisions for this group."

Councillor Rachel Harris said: "We welcome the exciting proposals and look forward to further discussions about how they might benefit people with autism and mental health problems in Dudley."

DOLLY'S GOT THEM WORKING 9 TO 5 ON MUSICAL

Louise Hicklin, of Halesowen, Salli Gage, of Kingswinford, and Michelle Cassells, of Stourbridge, in 9 to 5 The Musical at Stoubridge Town Hall

PERFORMERS are set to bring a Dolly Parton hit to life on the stage.

Members of Cradley Heath Amateur Operatic Society – known as CHAOS – are putting the finishing touches to their production of 9 to 5 The Musical, which runs from November 14 to 18 at Stourbridge Town Hall.

Michelle Cassells, one of the actors, said: "It's all starting to come together now. It's very funny, fast-moving. It's really good fun."

The show, featuring music and lyrics by the country/pop music sensation, is based on the 1980 movie of the same name, about three office workers who turn the tables on their sexist boss.

Cameo

And Dolly herself will be putting in a cameo appearance via a projection of the Grammy Award winner, who will introduce the characters and lead the audience in a sing-along of the blockbuster title tune.

Tickets, which start from £14, can be purchased by calling the box office on 0121 585 7380.

CHAOS, which is longest established amateur operatics society in the Black Country, moved to its new base in Stourbridge earlier this year after more than 50 years at Brierley Hill Civic Hall.

CARAVANS

Coseley on shortlist for travellers' camp

AN emergency holding camp for evicted travellers could be built in Coseley.

Dudley Council bosses are thrashing out plans for a transit site in the borough and Coseley is believed to be on the shortlist.

Councillor Paul Brothwood, UKIP group leader in Dudley said: "It is my understanding a site is being looked at in Coseley. Unfortunately we can't send them to another borough. We have to have one in the borough."

Coseley East Ward councillor Star Anderton said chiefs should prepare for battle over any plans put forward for Coseley.

PARKING

Fees in line to be lifted for Christmas

PARKING charges look set to be suspended on council car parks on certain days in the run-up to Christmas.

Dudley Council is proposing free parking on December 16 and 23 in a bid to boost trade for town centre businesses. Parking will also be free to coincide with Christmas light switch-ons across the borough.

Parking charges have been regularly suspended in years gone by.

DEATH

Bridge tragedy victim is named

A man who died after he is believed to have fallen from a bridge over Wolverhampton's ring road has been named locally as Chris Brookes, aged 22, from Coseley.

He was found with serious head injuries in a bus lane under the footbridge linking bus and train stations in Wolverhampton during the early hours of Sunday. He was rushed to hospital but died of his injuries.

Game of thrones at village's new pub

Arthur or Alfred at the pub in

IT appears a Game of Thrones is taking place at this pub – with the wrong king given the crowning glory.

The pub is named after the mythical King Arthur, but King Alfred actually appears to be the monarch featured on the sign outside.

Brewer Bathams recently opened the pub in Worcester Road, Hagley, and said business is thriving.

The sign outside appears to resemble a statue of Anglo Saxon King Alfred from Winchester. And it has left some people asking if there has been a mix-up.

When asked about the design, Tim Batham, company co-director, said he was happy.

"We left it with the sign writer to come up with the ideas but there can't be any portraits of King Arthur as he is mythical."

Tim, who runs Bathams with his brother Matthew, said the name Arthur was chosen in tribute to his family. The brewery is now in its fifth generation with a sixth coming through.

King Arthur pays homage to Arthur Batham, who guided the Brierley Hill brewery through tough times during the 1950s and developed the well known Bathams Bitter.

The pub is the brewery's first new build establishment. Tim said the pub has proven popular with customers, adding: "It has far exceeded our expectations."

Halesowen-based firm A & H Construction was commissioned to carry out the pub's development by converting a two four-storey office block.

King Alfred, also known as Alfred the Great, was an English king who successfully defended his kingdom against Viking invaders.

Dancer has raised £5k in memory of father

A DANCER has spoken of her pride after raising more than £5,000 for a cancer charity, after her father died from the disease.

Chloe Evans' latest fundraising event raised £1,100 for Bowel Cancer UK, where a night of dance and theatre was held on her father's birthday.

She lost father Wayne to bowel cancer in May 2013. He was just 42 and left behind his wife Clare and two daughters, Chloe and Natasha.

Chloe, aged 20 from Sedgley, said: "I am so proud, but so thankful to everyone who has supported me in all my fundraising. It is an incredible amount to raise and I wouldn't have achieved it without everyone's kind generosity."

She began fundraising a year ago and her total for Bowel Cancer UK has now reached £5,277. Her father would have turned 47 last Saturday, when the event was held. Chloe said: "It turns everything into a positive and I know he would be super proud."

More than 70 dancers, including Chloe, performed at Colton Hills School in Wolverhampton for an audience of more than 100. Among dancers were a group from a HND Dance Course at Kidderminster College where Chloe studies.

Parking fine hotspots of borough revealed

NEARLY 4,000 parking fines were handed out in three months in Dudley borough this summer.

More than £82,000 was made from penalty notices between July and September as drivers were caught flouting the rules.

Castle Street in Dudley was revealed as the most likely place for motorists to be slapped with a ticket – with more handed out there than anywhere else during the period. From the start of July until the end of September, a total of 3,796 fines were issued, bringing in a total of £82,225.

The figures were released by Dudley Council under the Freedom of Information Act.

Bosses warned that those who continued to break the rules would be made to pay for it – with traffic wardens out in force in Castle Street.

The pedestrian section, which joins Market Place, has double-yellow lines but there are some bays allowing shoppers to park for an hour.

Hotspot

The street remains the borough's parking fine hotspot after it was revealed earlier this year that almost 1,500 were issued there in 2016/17 – an average of five a day.

Councillor Paul Brothwood said: "With the introduction of free parking across the borough I am hoping there is less chance of people getting tickets.

"We want people in our town centres, there is plenty of free parking available. As long as people are parking legally, they shouldn't be concerned."

He added: "Compared to other councils our revenue from parking fines is relatively small."

Stourbridge High Street, Dudley High Street and Wolverhampton Street in Dudley, were next on the list on hotspots where motorists were most likely to pick up a fine.

Drivers who flout restrictions are hit with fines of up to £70. However, the amount is cut by half if paid within 14 days.

Bostin' Black Country images

Gary Crutchley captured this atmospheric evening shot of the museum's vintage fairground attractions

IT is one of the region's best loved and most photographed attractions. So, to mark its 40th anniversary, the Black Country Living Museum launched a photographic competition to show the site at its best.

Visitors were urged to snap their own shots at the Tipton Road museum and submit them for the 2018 calendar. Now the winners have been chosen. They are Stacy Woolhouse, Derek Barrett, Tony Carwithen, Robert Herringshaw, Derek Barrett, Neil Brinsdon, Stephen Davis, Gary Portman, Stephen Davis, Gary Crutchley, Paul Lucas, and Roger Bowater.

Among the winning photos is this atmospheric shot of the museum's ever-popular fairground. The various shops and workshops, tram and canal bridge also feature among the stunning array of images taken by museum visitors. The calendar can be ordered on the bclm.co.uk website.

The event on November 8 will see the library team working with The Reading Agency to celebrate the release of Ms Hill's new collection 'The Travelling Bag'.

There will be an atmospheric live storytelling session with readings from the latest work, which include an assortment of hauntings.

Fireworks display in aid of charity

A pub is hosting a charity bonfire night in aid of Mary Stevens Hospice tonight (Thursday).

The New Inn, on the corner of Cherry Street and Glebe Lane, in Norton, Stourbridge, will host the event with fireworks shows at 7pm and 9pm.

Campaign to bring old rail route back

GOVERNMENT Transport Secretary Chris Grayling is facing calls to reopen a long-disused stretch of railway that passes through the heart of the Black Country.

Campaigners have urged Secretary of State for Transport Mr Grayling to bring back into use a section of the Worcester to Derby Main Line between Stourbridge and Burton in Staffordshire.

The stretch, which passes through Brierley Hill and Dudley, closed in the 1960s as part of the infamous 'Beeching' cuts that shut down 4,500 miles of tracks in the UK.

The move has been backed by West Midlands Mayor Andy Street, who described it as 'a long-term aspiration'.

The Campaign for Better Transport has urged Mr Grayling to set up of a fund to pay for the opening of 12 additional railway lines and stations across the country.

Stephen Joseph, the group's chief executive, said: "We regularly hear from local authorities, developers and communities with very good proposals who have reached a brick wall when it comes to funding.

Damage

"That's why we're asking the Transport Secretary to create a new Network Development Fund and help reverse some of the damage done to our railways by Dr Beeching's hatchet job more than 60 years ago."

The line between Stourbridge and Burton runs for 56km. Freight trains run along 26km, but it is completely closed to passenger trains.

Mayor Mr Street said: "Complete reopening of that line is a long term aspiration and one we endorse entirely. In the shorter term we have said we will focus on restoring passenger services using the Metro to Brierley Hill and the reopening of the Stourbridge to Brierley Hill route. Reopening lines gives us a fantastic opportunity to reduce congestion and drive economic growth."

Viscount's talk helps hospice

MORE than £3,000 has been raised by Lord Cobham of Hagley Hall for Mary Stevens Hospice.

It came from a dinner at The Granary Hotel and Restaurant entitled An Evening with Lord Cobham, where he spoke about the history of Hagley Hall and his plans for its future.

Jackson tribute

A Michael Jackson tribute act will be touring next year.

Got to be Michael Jackson will perform at Brierley Hill Civic Hall on March 10. Tickets are £12.50 in advance or £15 on the door.

Jobs boost as industrial estate expands

SENIOR councillors have welcomed the prospect of hundreds of new jobs at a Brierley Hill industrial estate

The jobs are to be created after Dudley Council approved the estate's expansion, which business leaders estimate will add millions of pounds to the local economy.

A Local Development Order (LDO) has been agreed for Blackbrook Valley Area in Brierley Hill, which will make it easier for new businesses to move in.

Councillor Ian Kettle, cabinet member planning and economic development, said this will create 250 jobs in 106 hectares of land. Welcoming the plans, he said: "I want to get local wages up."

Dudley Council deputy leader David Vickers said: "I welcome these plans that will create new jobs in Dudley. This is something that is much needed."

High quality manufacturing and office jobs will be created on the estate. The LDO will make it easier for businesses to set up shop.

Blackbrook falls in a 'regeneration corridor' earmarked between Dudley and Brierley Hill, which ties to the planned Midland Metro line when the network links up with Dudley and Brierley Hill.

Backing

It forms part of the DY5 Enterprise Zone which was set up in Brierley Hill in January after backing from the Government. The zone will create 7,000 jobs and could generate £589 million annually for the area's economy.

It is situated in around 700,000sq m of land at Blackbrook Valley, between Netherton and Russells Hall .

A council report said: "The purpose of this Local Development Order is to help deliver area based economic growth and regeneration, in close proximity to the DY5 Enterprise Zone, with a focus on enabling industrial employment development through a simplified planning regime."

The report said the benefits of the LDO will 'avoid unnecessary delays for a developer as well as adding a degree of certainty to the planning process'.

Hundreds turn out for tragic Megan's funeral

A FUNERAL service has been held for Megan Bills – the 'vibrant' and 'wonderful' 17-year-old whose body was found in a clingfilm-wrapped wardrobe.

More than 200 people turned out at St James Church in Wollaston on Monday to say a final farewell to the hairdresser from Stourbridge.

The ceremony came five months after she was discovered dead at a hostel in Highgate Road, Brierley Hill.

Westlife song 'I'll See You Again' played out as mourners entered the church where Megan's wicker coffin was placed at the front draped in flowers.

Reverend Nick Kaleniuk began by telling how Megan was born in Coventry and was brought up by adoptive parents Dawn and Martin Bills in Stourbridge with her brother James.

She went to St James Primary School in the town. She became a dedicated member of the church choir while going on to pursue a career as a hairdresser.

Rev Diana Farmer then read out a tribute from her family, saying: "She played flute beautifully, cooked the best cakes, had an amazing talent in her profession as a hairdresser, was kind and caring to people of all ages and loved animals – especially dolphins."

Adventures

She described how the teenager would dress up and and put on make-up to go out one minute, only to then join in a game of football outside the next. She also loved going on holiday even wearing her bikini under her clothes on the way there just to jump in the sea at the earliest opportunity.

"Dawn, Martin and James said what a privilege and honour it was to have been a part of her life, there were lots of adventures along the way," Rev Farmer added.

The service also heard a tribute from Megan's former foster carer Jenny, who said: "She was loved by everyone who knew her."

Ashley Foster, aged 24, of no fixed address, was arrested and charged in connection with Megan's death. He has admitted one count of preventing a burial but denied a charge of murder. He is due to stand trial in January.

£104m is spent on fixing the problem

COUNCILS across the UK spent more than £104 million repairing potholes last year, new figures show.

And local authorities splashed out more than £3m compensating drivers who had their vehicles damaged as a result of hitting one. It comes as a survey from confused.com revealed that more than one third of drivers had their cars damaged by potholes last year, with tyres (64 per cent) and suspension (42 per cent) the most common repairs. It also revealed that if you added up the depth of all the potholes in the UK it would be 25 miles deep.

Ex-forces should join police, call

POLICE forces should hire more ex-armed forces personnel when they retire from the military, a campaigner has said.

Wolverhampton Liberal Democrat activist Paul Butters has called on West Midlands Police to recruit more former soldiers, sailors and airmen.

Figures show that the force has 379 officers who were in the services – around five per cent of the 7,000 total.

Mr Butters said: "Ex-military personnel would make fantastic police officers, and it shocks me that for all the talk of harnessing the talent of forces personnel on civvy street we are not doing it."

Lorry driver pleads guilty in crash case

A motorist was so badly injured in a smash involving his car and two lorries on the M6 in March that he has only just been discharged from hospital, a judge heard.

Martin Brannigan was trapped in his vehicle on the M6 southbound between junctions 3 and 2, and had to be cut free before being taken to hospital.

Following a police investigation, one of the lorry drivers was charged with being responsible for the pile-up, which led to the southbound carriageway being closed for almost five hours.

At Warwick Crown Court, Andrew Hallbrook, aged 45, of Donnington Court, Dudley, pleaded guilty to causing serious injury to Mr Brannigan by driving his Daf HGV on the M6 dangerously.

Asking for the case to be adjourned, prosecutor Mr Adam Wester explained: "The prosecution wish to serve a comprehensive medical report, together with a prognosis."

Mr Earl Pinnock, defending, also asked for there to be an adjournment for a pre-sentence report to be prepared on Hallbrook.

Adjourning the case, Recorder Stuart Sprawson granted Hallbrook bail. But also imposed an interim disqualification. He warned Hallbrook: "You have pleaded guilty to an offence which is extremely serious, which could result in a prison sentence."

Mr Brannigan is believed to have suffered life-changing spinal cord damage in the crash.

Described on a crowd-funding page as a 'former Irish dancing dad,' a benefit evening was held recently at the Royal Hotel in Sutton Coldfield to raise money to help him and his family.

Man is charged after public halt armed raider

By Andrew Turton

A MAN has appeared in court charged after an armed robbery at a Dudley convenience shop.

Have-a-go heroes helped foil the raid at Spar, in Abbey Road, Lower Gornal after two men wielding a machete and baseball bat burst into the shop.

Stephen Ball, aged 31, of Turner Street, Tipton, was charged in connection with the raid.

He is accused of robbery, criminal damage, assault, affray and possession of an offensive weapon.

He appeared before Dudley Magistrates' Court on Wednesday October 25.

He was remanded in custody to appear before Wolverhampton Crown Court on November 22.

During the incident, which took place at 10pm on Monday last week, one man jumped over the counter to take cigarettes and cash as the second, carrying the machete, threatened workers and demanded they open a safe. He then fled the shop leaving the man with the bat behind the counter.

Passers-by, spotting the drama, held the shop door shut to leave the suspect unable to escape through the store.

Weapons

When he eventually smashed his way outside, the raider tried to break into a woman's car while she was inside. But he failed to snatch the keys and was grabbed again by residents until police arrived.

The second robber had managed to flee in a silver Rover car but left behind the cash he seized. Police praised the have-a-go heroes while they launched a manhunt to find the second robber.

Detective Constable Cal Sanders, from West Midlands Police's CID, said: "The suspect was detained as he was smashing the windows of a vehicle parked outside the shop in order get the keys and make good his escape.

"This vehicle had a lone woman inside who was showered in the glass and she is obviously shaken up by the incident.

"Passers-by intervened and detained the suspect at the scene. Without the public's help, I doubt he would have been caught."

The second suspect was wearing dark clothing and gloves, in his late teens to early-20s, possibly white, and of slim build. He was around 5ft 5ins tall.

Travel giant defies threat of terrorism

BUS and coach operator National Express fended off the effects of terrorism to carry more passengers, driving higher revenue and profits across the group.

Low Fare Zones, which have been piloted in Sandwell and Dudley, have led to a four per cent increase in passenger numbers and a two per cent increase in revenues.

Shares jumped by three per cent on opening after the transport giant, which runs bus services in the Midlands as well as the Midlands Metro tram system, reported a 6.4 per cent rise in revenue in the quarter covering July to September.

Profits have accelerated since the half-year mark, helped by ticket promotions and low fare zones. Pre-tax profits rose 14.9 per cent, an improvement on the 11 per cent in the first half of the year.

The group's coach division has overcome the impact of terrorism to secure growth.

Call for more discretion over holidays in term time

PARENTS who take their children out of school for holidays during term time should not face fines every time, says the leader of Dudley Council.

Councillor Patrick Harley called on headteachers to use 'discretion' where possible.

It comes as it was revealed more than 200 parents in the borough were hit with fines due to their child's low attendance at school during a 12-month period.

A total of 224 fines were issued during the last school year because pupils were not attending school often enough.

Dudley Council took action against parents whose children were persistently staying away for school during 2016/17.

Parents are warned they could face prosecution in the event of 'persistent absence' which the Government says is 10 per cent.

Court

Fines of up to £2,500 can be issued if parents are taken to court.

Councillor Harley insisted it was unacceptable for children to be kept off school for no good reason. However, he also suggested parents who took children out of school during term time for holidays might not face fines on every occasion.

"It is the continued policy of Dudley borough schools that leave of absence for pupils during term time will not be authorised except in exceptional circumstances. This includes episodes of truancy or children simply not attending school.

"We are passionate about ensuring that all children attend school regularly to make sure they get an all-round, well-balanced education. However, we understand the financial pressures on parents taking children on holiday during half term and school holidays. Headteachers do have a limited amount of discretion that they should use sensibly and when appropriate."

Good service

THE firm running the Stourbridge Shuttle train is serving up a sponsorship deal for Quarry Bank Tennis Club.

Pre Metro Operations will sponsor the club over four years, which will enable major improvements to be carried out.

Club treasurer Paul Julian said: "We are delighted with this arrangement and are very grateful to Pre Metro. The deal underpins the financial stability of the club and allows us to plan for future improvements to the facilities and clubhouse."

'Pay up' call to clubs on £5 million police bill

WOLVES, Albion, Villa, and Walsall have paid police millions of pounds to man their matches, figures show.

A total of £5,196,527 has been paid to West Midlands Police by the region's six professional clubs since the 2013-14 season. But the force says the amount covers only part of the total matchday costs – and campaigners are calling for the clubs to pick up a larger slice of the bill.

Villa have the largest policing bill, totalling £1.5m over the past five seasons. Wolves' costs came to £1,015,995 but still less than the £1.1m paid by Birmingham City, and Albion paid £968,235. Walsall's bill was £265,701 while Coventry City picked up costs of £246,751 over the past five seasons.

Police can charge clubs for costs only inside the stadiums, meaning patrols around nearby streets, railway stations and town centres are paid for by the force.

Liberal Democrat campaigner Rob Quarmby said: "These clubs are some of the richest in Europe, sharing a part of a multi-million or even multi-billion TV rights deal.

"I believe if you can spend £20 million on a player who might sit on your [substitutes] bench, you can pay to keep fans safe, many of them paying hundreds of pounds to follow their team," Mr Quarmby added.

The figures were released under the Freedom of Information Act.

Teenage girl badly hurt in collision

A two-car crash in Dudley left three teenagers needing treatment – including one girl with serious injuries.

Three ambulances were called to Saltwells Road just after 11.45pm on Tuesday last week.

Fire crews from Haden Cross and Brierley Hill were in attendance after one of the cars was believed to have smashed into a parked vehicle and overturned. Paramedics worked on a teenage girl who was out of the car when they arrived. She had suffered a reduced level of consciousness.

She was treated for serious chest, pelvic, arm and abdominal injuries, immobilised and taken to Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Birmingham. Another teenage girl and a teenage boy were taken to Russells Hall Hospital.

Albion back bid to find missing man

Find Liggy – Missing Albion fan Matthew Gill's image was shown on the big screen at The Hawthorns

WEST Bromwich Albion launched a fresh appeal at The Hawthorns in a bid to help find a Stourbridge man who has been missing for more than three weeks.

Images of Baggies fan Matthew Gill were shown on the big screens at half time during the game against Manchester City on Saturday.

Matthew's partner Annette Woodhouse said: "I'm really pleased that his favourite football team WBA are supporting us in finding him."

An image of Matthew was shown along with his name and the words #FindLiggy, which has been used on social media.

An appeal was also read out over the public address system, including details about his mobile phone, which has been switched on since his disappearance. Baggies fans were asked to call a police helpline if they had any details about the 43-year-old, last seen in the Stourton area.

Albion spokesman Martin Swain said: "We had his picture up on the screen and read out the appeal based on his last movements and his mobile phone. There was a phone number appeal and people were asked to get in contact."

Detectives have disclosed Matthew's phone, a black Samsung Galaxy S4 mini, was switched on October 19 during the early evening somewhere in the Stourton area of Staffordshire and was left on for several hours. He was last seen during th emorning of October 6.

Matthew is described as white, 5ft 10ins tall, of medium build and had short cropped hair. Information can be left on 01902 649150 or the Missing People charity on 116 000.

Three vow to fight bid for boundary changes

THREE councillors have launched a campaign to block proposed boundary changes they say would 'rip the heart out' of a town.

Under Boundary Commission plans unveiled last month, part of Dudley town centre and neighbourhoods to its east would be placed in a new Sandwell constituency stretching almost 10 miles to Birmingham.

Councillors in St Thomas ward – which includes Kates Hill, Buffery Park, Oakham and Blowers Green – are urging businesses, charities, community groups and residents to oppose the plans.

Councillors Shaukat Ali, Steve Waltho and Shaneila Mughal made their views clear in a join statement.

They said: "We think these proposals are terrible for the community we serve and the businesses in the town centre we represent.

Ripped

"Why should our ward be chucked in with seven Sandwell wards in a constituency stretching miles and miles to the edge of Birmingham?

"We represent the heart of Dudley and it should not be ripped out like this.

"We're asking residents, businesses, charities and community groups to write to the Boundary Commission and urge them to think again."

The landmark St Thomas's Church would be in a different constituency to the ward that carries its name. The ward would be included with seven Sandwell wards.

It has been part of Dudley North since its formation in 1997.

The seat is currently held by Labour MP Ian Austin, and will be scrapped if the commission's plans are signed off by MPs following the latest consultation.

Prior to that it was in the now defunct constituency of Dudley East.

The Boundary Commission plans are part of a Government pledge to reduce the number of MPs from 650 to 600.

It is the second year in succession that the Shuttle, which is operated alongside London Midland, has been commended.

Pre Metro chief executive Phil Evans said: "We are delighted to be once again recognised by our industry colleagues for our innovative and environmentally-friendly operation here in the Black Country.

"Our staff work tirelessly to provide the Stourbridge Shuttle service every day, with industry-leading levels of reliability."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Christmas tree festival at cone

WORDSLEY'S Red House Glass Cone will be hosting its first Christmas tree festival this December.

Individuals, schools, businesses and organisations are being invited to provide a tree, decorated in the manner that best represents them, and to give a donation that goes to the Mayor of Dudley's charities. Trees can be real, artificial or something in the shape of a tree but can be no taller than five foot. The cone will provide electricity for one set of lights but battery operated lights are welcome.

The Red House Glass Cone, in High Street, is open 10am to 3pm Monday to Friday and 11am to 4pm weekends.

'Great news' as homes complete

A SCHEME to create council homes on the site of a former Tipton primary school has been completed.

Families have moved into the properties at Tibbington Terrace where Princes End Primary School once stood. Seven homes have been built on the site as part of a deal with developer Kier Living.

Sandwell Council's housing boss Councillor Kerrie Carmichael said: "This is great news. The completion of this scheme sees another seven new council homes giving people the opportunity to set down roots."

Care team joins charity bike ride

A team of care workers is playing its part a 2,000-mile cycle relay challenge to raise money for Children in Need.

Staff from Springfield House care home, Codsall, will ride the near 11 miles from Wolverhampton to Broadway Halls care home in Dudley.

The complete route runs from Inverness to Bournemouth before culminating in St Brelade on Jersey. It is not direct but instead connects care homes run by provider Brighterkind.

Having started earlier this month the aim is to finish on November 16, with a target to raise £17,500.

Arson-hit derelict pub may be in facelift plan

A DUDLEY pub which has been derelict for several years may be renovated as part of a development masterplan.

The Metro Bar in Trindle Road could be part of a project to regenerate the site around Cavendish House.

Councillor Khurshid Ahmed said: "Plans show that the pub was part of the Cavendish redevelopment area, so I hope that once things get moving it will form part of that." It comes after a fire on the first floor last month.

Broken Or Damaged Windows? Faulty Locks, Handles, Hinges?

IN MY VIEW
with Mark Andrews

Brexit? He must think that we are all thick

DO you ever think that some of our public figures are actually Jeremy Beadle style wind-up merchants, liable at any minute to whip off their comedy wig and produce a hidden microphone?

I only ask following the breathtakingly arrogant and out-of-touch statement from John Bercow, Speaker of the House of Commons, during a visit to Wolverhampton University.

Mr Speaker said he was "not a fan" of giving the public a vote on major issues such as Brexit, saying "nuanced and complicated" issues were best left to MPs. In other words, I think he's saying we're a bit thick. Best not to trouble the great unwashed with difficult stuff, just leave it to the intellectual titans at Westminster.

Let us not forget that three of the most prominent parliamentarians wheeled out by the Remain campaign last year were Alan Johnson, Lord Prescott and Sir John Major. Who, before entering Parliament had respectively worked as a postman, a ship's steward and a navvy.

Nothing wrong with that, of course. Indeed, it is surely a good thing to have politicians who come from a similar background to the rest of us.

But they're not exactly rocket scientists, are they? If they can understand Brexit, then surely we can too.

GREAT to hear Wolverhampton Council has spent £19,000 on a new "corporate image" for the city. The number of times I have driven through some of the ropier parts of Horseley Fields and thought to myself "what this city really needs is a new logo."

It seems some of this money was spent on tickets for Wolves games and taxi rides, to give the consultants "a feel for the city". Can't say fairer than that, although they would have probably got more of a feel for the city in the subway next to the Mercedes garage.

The council says the consultants "undertook very thorough research over a number of months".

Anyhow, the good news is that the consultants have come up with a new logo, which is essentially a stylised letter "W" and the words "City of Wolverhampton" underneath, and hats off to them. You can't come up with ideas like that on the cheap.

Sadly, though, it has come too late to go on the new "Welcome to Wolverhampton" signs installed earlier this year at a cost of £23,000. Which is rather a shame, as they would have looked really good next to the boarded-up pub in Birmingham Road.

We bought diesels believing they were better for planet

Actress Sian Webber – no such historical character as Lady Dorothy

Dodgy TV subtitles – one reader recalls 'Cold Daddy' for Colonel Gadaffi

Prime Minister Theresa May faces a dilemma over the Chancellor

T for Toxic maybe, but they will stay

THE BEST OF PETER RHODES

I WONDER how many of us driving older diesel cars which have now been branded T for Toxic in London, will do exactly the opposite of what the clean-air lobby expects. At a stroke, the market value of our old bangers has been reduced, so we are hardly likely to rush to the showroom and trade them for a shiny new model at a whopping loss. We are far more likely to keep on running them for as long as possible. We bought our diesels in the belief that they were not only economical but also better for the planet. The science changes, the politicians do their virtue-signalling and we take the hit.

A SURVEY for Woman's Hour reveals that the London borough of Islington is the worst place in Britain for women to live. But look at the wider results of this survey on favoured or despised places and one fact becomes blindingly obvious. A lot of women hate cities.

I HEARD a weather forecaster this week refer to sunny spells on "the extreme south coast." Not to be confused with the moderate, mild, rational or marginal south coast.

BRIGHTHOUSE, the so-called rent-to-own retailer, has been ordered to pay nearly £15 million to compensate about 250,000 customers and has been denounced by the Financial Conduct Authority for not being a "responsible lender." A reader reports getting an email, allegedly from BrightHouse, offering a refund and requesting his bank details. It's a scam. Bin it.

RESEARCHERS at Glasgow University reported a couple of years ago that, while English regional accents are vanishing, Scottish accents are thriving. If you doubt that, listen to Jamie Harron, the 27-year-old from Stirling jailed in Dubai for allegedly touching a man's hip, talking to reporters when he arrived at Glasgow Airport. It may have made perfect sense to everyone in Stirling but we Sassenachs were struggling.

THIS sort of interview must pose a dilemma for the TV companies. Imagine the diplomatic incident if the BBC, Sky or ITV started using subtitles for interviews in Scotland.

THE most distressing scene in Gunpowder (BBC1) was the execution of Lady Dorothy Dibdale which required actress Sian Webber to strip naked before being crushed under weights. You can argue that such grisly and obscene detail is vital to tell the true story. Yet the truth is there was no such historical character as Lady Dorothy. She was created for the series, presumably to crank up the gore level.

I REFERRED a few days ago to the Co-op bank ending its policy of sending addressed envelopes with credit-card statements and trying to pretend that we customers asked for it "in our quest towards a paperless future." Making the public think they support some new policy is commonplace. Take the revelation that drivers may soon be prosecuted for any litter dropped from their car, even if somebody else dropped it. Part of Whitehall's justification for this is that a survey revealed 81 per cent of us are angry about the amount of litter on our roads. Well, of course we are. But it's a quantum leap from that to accepting the principle that Citizen A can be punished for the sins of Citizen B. Once that notion gets into English law, where will it end?

THANKS for your memories of dodgy subtitles on television news reports. The technology does not seem to get better. One reader recalls 'Cold Daddy' for Colonel Gadaffi, and 'I ritz eye', the words allegedly uttered by a resigning politician. The recent Storm Ophelia was 'feely'.

A READER tells me she plucked up her courage, strode into a local shop and complained about the "tasteless and grotesque" Halloween decorations which featured blood-stained handprints on the shop window with the warning: "No-One Leaves." Good for her. The media moguls may own the airwaves but the streets are still ours. Defend them.

IS 'spreadsheet Phil' Hammond the most bumbling, blundering Chancellor of the Exchequer in living memory, whose political antennae, if indeed he ever had any, have simply withered out of existence?

Or is he, in fact, much smarter than most people have given him credit for, and just pretending to be gormless? My feeling is that Hammond is indeed a lot smarter, acute and well-meaning than many people have suggested.

Sometimes, you cannot help but get the impression that Hammond, who has been accused of near-sabotage over Brexit, is taunting the Prime Minister to take drastic action over his post. A rampant Hammond on the Tory backbenches could be real trouble for Theresa May.

So the Prime Minister faces a dilemma. Dumping your Chancellor is no minor matter, but how long can she tolerate this continued behaviour from a Chancellor who does not bother even to be subtle in his machinations?

TALKING POINT

Dog tired of dirty mutts in 'my space'

THE confession I am about to make is likely to shock, perhaps repulse and may lead to me becoming a social pariah.

But I refuse to maintain this veil of shame any longer. My name is Diane Davies and I don't like dogs!

This revelation will have consequences. Whenever I let any hint of my dislike show I am usually subjected to interrogation and a verbal bashing.

To the extent that I felt forced to hide this guilty secret for fear it could damage my career. With one previous boss I even pretended to like the dirty, needy creatures because they were a big dog lover.

People are genuinely surprised that I do not like dogs. Not that I wish them any harm of course. I just don't want them jumping up me demanding attention and pulling my clothes.

Is it right that whenever I venture out on a pleasant stroll at one of the many beauty spots on our doorstep that I can expect a mud-soaked mutt to come running up to me? The added sight of one of my children is guaranteed to throw a dog into a frenzy as an apparent play pal is on the scene.

Do the owners apologise profusely for their over-exuberant pet? Sometimes, but mostly it is accompanied by a beaming smile and the reassurance 'don't worry, they won't hurt you."

What they are really saying is the animal has never actually hurt THEM. The dog has never met me before and hasn't encountered my daughter who is likely to want to hang onto its tail and want a piggyback. Even the most mild-mannered pet might find this annoying.

Friends and family are quite distraught that I do not want to pet their beloved pet. While I am quite distraught that the beloved pet is taking up half the sofa and when I finally get a seat I will be leaving the house wearing a blanket of animal hair.

Cynophobia is the fear of dogs, an actual medical condition which suggests that though we might be known as a nation of dog lovers not everyone is signed up to it. Bit like Brexit.

I don't have a phobia of dogs, I just prefer to stay away from them - if only they would do the same. In my experience dogs can sniff out people who are not dog-lovers and will come boisterously bounding up to us just to make us look bad.

It's not that I hate animals, I have two gorgeous cats. And life would be very dull if we were all the same and please don't judge me because I don't share your love of dogs. I'm a nice person really but please keep your mutts well away from me.

EU blocking Brexit progress, so move on

I BELIEVE that the UK should seriously prepare for a Brexit that involves walking away from the EU completely.

This could well mean that neither side gets anything from our decision to leave the EU. I draw this conclusion from considering press reports of the mood of the current negotiations between the UK and EU representatives.

Our negotiators offer ways forward and the EU negotiators reject them. They say we are not offering enough to satisfy the future of EU citizens, how the UK/Eire border will work and how much we are prepared to pay to leave. What they are really trying to achieve is not a solution to these subjects but to prolong the negotiating exercise.

I think the EU negotiators know only too well that a free trade agreement between the two parties is the sensible way forward and once they start to address the issue they will come under intense pressure from EU industrial interests.

In view of our membership of the EU for the last few decades this is, surely, the correct way to proceed, however, this would go against the main tenet of EU membership which is free trade = free movement and they know only too well that the UK voted to leave the EU primarily to bring control of immigration back to our shores.

We also have to consider, especially in relation to recent comments from Mr Juncker, that the unelected that control the EU are constantly seeking to establish a single European establishment with common taxes, common laws and an EU army. Negotiating free trade agreements is not their primary concern anymore!

It's no spin, my theory on climate

AFTER all of the talk about weather and earthquakes, my mind has been playing with a thought, but because it concerned the revolution of the earth, until this morning I could not think of a suitable way to describe what was in my head. Then bingo!

Take a slice segment through the earth and you get a wheel. At the centre, is the hub and on the outside is the rim. If you upset the balance, you get trouble. So you keep taking away from the centre, and adding the substance removed to the outside, the wheel spins faster, doesn't it? If the outside is not loaded evenly it wobbles, doesn't it?

For many years, man has been taking from the centre of the earth coal, oil, etc and making concrete and tarmac structures. All adding height and weight to the surface of the earth causing it to spin faster. Are my thoughts so far out from what is happening?

More begging on streets than ever

IS it just me or does the number of people begging in Dudley town centre increase by the week? Over the past few weeks it's got worse and worse, people openly begging asking for money and cigarettes, sat in disused shop doorways.

Now don't get we wrong, I know full well that people fall on hard times through one reason or another, but you don't want to keep seeing and being subjected to this whilst trying to do a bit of shopping.

Surely there's some organisation or other that can help them to save them having to resort to this way of life just to survive? No wonder there's so many empty shops in the town, potential shop owners must come along and see these unfortunate people begging on the street and in shop doorways and well, let's just say, it don't look too good does it?

LEE THOMAS

Let's just cut our EU losses now

MAY I please respond to Alan T Harrison's reply to my recent letter regarding our trade deficit with the EU?

Perhaps I should just refer to him as Harrison as he does not refer to myself, or indeed Roger Watts either, by using anything other than just a surname.

I am not exactly sure just what Harrison means by proportionality, but having weaved his complex web of calculations that supposedly demolish my argument, none of it can refute the established fact that in trade we are in deficit to the EU to the extent of approximately £60 billion per annum, and this fact should give the UK negotiators a strong hand.

With regard to a trade deal, the common sense outcome for all concerned would, of course, be for the UK and the EU to continue to trade within a free trade area, without payment of a fee on either side.

Driver gets life sentence for hit-and-run murder

THE motorist who murdered Halesowen man Benjamin Morse in a late-night hit-and-run has been jailed for a minimum of 15 years.

Nidal Alboraiki drove his Vauxhall Corsa at a group including Mr Morse following an unexplained exchange.

After missing, he turned his car around and accelerated again, striking the 36-year-old from behind and catapulting him onto his windscreen causing a fatal brain injury.

Victim Mr Morse

The 21-year-old driver later tried to dispose of the car.

But on Monday Alboraiki was found guilty of murder following a two-week trial at Wolverhampton Crown Court and, at the same court on Tuesday, he was given a life sentence with a minimum term of 15 years.

Judge John Burbidge QC, said: "You accelerated as fast as the car would go in that short space of time and went seemingly flat out into the group of lads."

He added that Alboraiki, also from Halesowen, did not show 'an ounce of common decency', after mowing down his victim.

The jury also found the killer guilty of seeking to pervert the course of justice, as was Alboraiki's 19-year-old brother, Ahmed, after he disposed of a mobile phone handed to him by his brother during his arrest at the family home in Foxhunt Road. He was jailed for a total of 14 months.

The murder took place in Beach Street, Halesowen, in the early hours of May 1.

Mr Morse, of Yewtree Road, and his friends had just been dropped off by a taxi in Bloomfield Street North when they encountered Alboraiki.

Flog It! fans at auction

TV presenter Paul Martin with Eithne Johnston from Kingswood, near Albrighton, at Aston's Auctioneers in Dudley for the BBC's Flog It!

A QUIRKY bicycle and selection of Beatles autographs were among the items to be auctioned off when Flog It! hit the Black Country.

The plastic concept bike was designed in the early 1980s and sold by Robert Berry from Walsall – while the Fab Four's signatures netted one seller £1,500 more than expected.

Buyers and sellers packed Aston's Auctioneers & Valuers in Tower Street, Dudley, for the event filmed by the BBC.

Mr Berry's plastic bike went for £190. A postcard signed by each member of The Beatles went for £3,500, after being valued at around £2,000. Patricia Holland, from Rhyl, who had kept the autographs in her family since the 1960s, said she was going to put the money towards a holiday. The most expensive lot was a £9,800 diamond ring.

Chief Constable Dave Thompson addressing MPs

Return of traditional crimes 'piles up pressure on police'

By Peter Madeley

THE West Midlands' police chief has warned that a rise in 'traditional crimes' is piling pressure on the region's force as he took the battle for increased funding to Westminster.

Chief Constable Dave Thompson said spikes in crimes involving guns and knives as well as burglary were 'back as a challenge' having previously declined.

While addressing the cross-party Home Affairs Committee in the House of Commons on the future of policing, he also called for a national debate on the 'horrifying' scale of people viewing child abuse images online, insisting that prosecuting offenders was 'not going to be an answer on its own'.

Mr Thompson, who is the lead for the National Police Chiefs Council for Finance, said there were 'red lights' over the ability of West Midlands Police to perform. And he admitted that its effectiveness had been 'curtailed' over the past year due to the continued impact of funding cuts stretching resources.

"I look at neighbourhood officers and they are frustrated that some of the preventative work they want to do is not happening. I look at the kind of reactive investigation loads, and we are finding prioritising that harder," he told the MPs.

Professor Brian Cox back for live show

HAVING set two Guinness World Record titles with his previous sell-out live UK and Ireland tour, Professor Brian Cox is set to return to the West Midlands.

Taking audiences to the edge of our current understanding about the origin and evolution of our Solar System and the Universe, Professor Brian Cox Live 2019 offers a fascinating insight into the workings of nature at the most fundamental level.

He will once again be joined by co-host of The Infinite Monkey Cage and award-winning comedian Robin Ince to oversee an audience Q&A.

Cox is Professor of Particle Physics at The University of Manchester, The Royal Society Professor for Public Engagement in Science and a Fellow of the Royal Society.

Professor Brian Cox will appear at Arena Birmingham on February 23, 2019.

Assaults on health staff tops 15,000 in five years

By Peter Madeley

MENTAL health staff in the West Midlands have been subjected to violent attacks by patients more than 15,000 times over the last five years, new figures have revealed.

And the number of assaults in the region's mental health units has rocketed by 23 per cent since 2012-13 leading to calls for tougher security measures to protect workers.

Figures obtained via a Freedom of Information request showed that over the period there was a total of 23,363 attacks across the region's four mental health trusts – the Black Country Partnership, Dudley and Walsall Mental Health Partnership, South Staffordshire and Shropshire Healthcare NHS Trust, and Birmingham and Solihull Mental Health Foundation Trust – equating to an average of 13 attacks a day.

Sara Gorton

Of those, 15,631 involved patients attacking staff, and 7,679 were patient-on-patient assaults.

The figures also show that on 54 occasions, staff attacked patients, while there were three incidents where staff attacked other workers.

South Staffordshire and Shropshire Healthcare NHS Trust saw the largest number of incidents with 9,728 attacks. Across the region, there were 4,099 attacks reported in 2012-13 and 5,052 in 2016-17 – an increase of 23 per cent.

The data was sourced by the Lib Dems, whose West Midlands spokesman Rob Quarmby said: "We should take a zero tolerance approach against anyone who attacks any of our staff either physically or verbally and we work with local police in the management of aggressive and violent individuals. The safety of staff and patients is the most important thing and we take the issue of hospital security very seriously. Staff should be told to report all violent incidents to the police"

Public service union Unison revealed that in a survey of more than 1,000 mental health staff, 42 per cent of respondents said they had been victims of violence over the last year.

Sara Gorton, head of health at Unison, said staff shortages meant fewer people were around to deal with rising numbers of patients with complex needs. "This is leading to an increase in violence and a working environment that makes it more difficult to retain staff," she said.

The Department of Health said it was 'completely unacceptable' for NHS staff to face violence or aggression at work. A DoH spokesman said £11.6bn had been invested last year and it was creating 21,000 new posts by 2021.

Tourism booming as business hits £850m

TOURISM has helped boost a county's economy by more than £850 million and created 17,000 jobs, figures show.

Tourism has also been rising as visitors continue to flock to Worcestershire and the Wyre Forest district. Councillors are bidding to get an even bigger slice of the tourism pie to help attract more investment.

The most recent statistics show more than 16 million tourist trips are being made to Worcestershire every year. Visitors to the Wyre Forest district, which boasts the Severn Valley Railway and the West Midland Safari Park, also attracted more people.

Councillor Ken Pollock said: "It's fantastic news. We are a world-class county and the more people who enjoy our beautiful countryside and picturesque towns, the better."

Special status for park war memorial

The war memorial in Mary Stevens Park has been upgraded to special status by Historic England

A war memorial has been given greater protection as it was classified among 'particularly important buildings'.

The Stourbridge memorial, in Mary Stevens Park, was already Grade II listed but its rating has been upgraded further to Grade II* listed.

The rating is awarded to buildings or structures deemed to be of 'more than special interest' by Historic England.

The change comes following a review by the public body tasked with preserving the nation's history.

It has been listed for re-designation as part of Historic England's First World War Commemoration project. The project seeks to record and protect war memorials.

Only six per cent of listed buildings across the country have such a status.

Councillor Ian Kettle said: "It is a beautiful and historic monument to the hundreds of very brave soldiers from Stourbridge who gave their lives for their country"

Hospice to host festive weekend in town

STOURBRIDGE'S first festive community weekend will be held in the grounds of Mary Stevens Hospice and park next month.

The Sparkling Spectacular will take over Stourbridge on December 9 and 10.

Day one of the festive fun weekend will be held in the grounds of the Mary Stevens Hospice in Oldswinford. Guests will be treated to a Winter Wonderland craft market, live music, an all-day barbecue, children's craft activities, a gift-wrapping service and the chance for children to meet Santa and Rudolph.

Jog

Then on the Sunday, alongside the Hagley Road charity's annual Santa Jog, the festivities will move to Mary Stevens Park where there will be all-day festive food, live bands and entertainment, the opportunity to watch or take part in the Santa Jog and a free family fun day.

Day one is from 10.30am to 4pm and day two from 10am to 4pm. Both days are being sponsored by Stourbridge Motor House.

By Clare Butler

Laura Millard, community engagement officer at the Mary Stevens Hospice, said: "In our opinion, this time of year is all about coming together as a community and enjoying the remarkable unity that exists here in the Black Country."

"It's our great privilege to be supported by so many families across the region, and we hope that they all enjoy what promises to be a truly unforgettable weekend."

To find out more about the festive weekend or book a package to see Santa and Rudolph call (01384) 377 778, or see marystevenshospice.co.uk/event/stourbridge-sparkling-spectacular website.

Problems postpone 'moon bear' concert

A ONE-OFF unique charity show starring Rick Wakeman and led by a Black Country production company has been called off.

The ambitious Over the Moon show, arranged by Stourbridge-based Base Video Productions, has been postponed after hitting 'unforeseen technical and practical problems.'

Keyboards supremo Wakeman, who was at Wolverhampton Grand Theatre this week, and international artist Maria Rud were leading the Over the Moon show.

A-list stars Ricky Gervais, Joanna Lumley and Peter Egan all took part in a video urging people to support the show which was taking place at the spectacular Queen's House in Greenwich, London, on December 10, in aid of the charity Animals Asia.

Live

The show aimed to combine art, music and architecture. The former Yes musician's compositions were to be translated into live artworks by Rud, painting onto a lightbox, and her creations then projected onto the building. Audience members would stand, sit or move around watching Wakeman and Rud closely as they collaborated on their art.

The Over the Moon set promised a blend of classic Wakeman material with new compositions written especially for the event.

Lined up to go on stage with Rick was son Adam, percussionist Ed Scull and leading London vocal ensemble the English Chamber Choir, conducted by Guy Protheroe.

The pioneering show is being arranged by Base Video Production which was founded by Andy Dingley and Warren Evans and is based in Rufford Road.

But it was announced this week that though the difficulties could all be overcome, this was not possible in the current timescale.

Keyboard wizard Rick Wakeman, formerly of Yes, was performing

Artist Maria Rud was due to create projected images live to music

A statement says: "So the decision was made to actively look for a new date in 2018 in order to ensure this very special and unique event achieves everything it should.

"Potential dates in 2018 are already being considered and as soon as a firm date is set then further announcements will be made."

The show was organised in aid of wildlife charity Animals Asia, which campaigns to end the bear bile trade.

More than 10,000 moon bears or Asiatic black bears are caged on bile farms in China, according to Animals Asia figures.

Animals Asia has rescued over 600 bears, caring for them at its award-winning bear sanctuaries in China and Vietnam. The 'moon bears' are kept on farms where they are locked up in cages for years with bile extracted from their gallbladder daily. The bile is used for medical reasons such as the treatment of rheumatism.

Tickets were sold at £32 for standard or £84 VIP. Anyone who has bought tickets will be contacted for a refund or reallocation to the rearranged show.

Simple steps homeowners can take now to protect their assets

Head of April King Legal Paul King explains why some homeowners are doing too little, too late to protect their hard-earned assets.

Paul King, Head of April King Legal

1. Care Cost Fees

A lot of people are still unaware that if they need care in later life, their assets will be means-tested by the local authority to help pay for these services. This goes back to the Community Care Act 1990, which came into force in 1993.

If someone requires social care in later life, the local authority will look to use the assets of a person until they get down to a lower limit of £14,250, when the local authority will take over the fees.

Paul knows this all too well, after experiencing this personally. "My own grandmother sadly passed away recently at the age of 92. My grandfather had died many years earlier and left everything to her.

When she needed care in the last six years of her life, because my grandfather had left everything to her, the house and all the estate were counted in the local authority's means test.

Our clients tell us, 'We've worked hard all our lives, why should the local authority get it all?'

Just as she died, she had gone down to that lower limit of £14,250 – and that's all that her children inherited."

There are many myths about the steps people can take to protect their assets from being used like this. The main one is that a parent should simply sign their house over to the children now, so it won't be taken into consideration for means testing. That's just not true.

Local authorities will actually look to see if you've 'deliberately deprived' yourself of an asset by giving property away, going back over any period in time.

Sometimes people think if the gift is made seven years prior then the house is safe.

This is not so as the seven-year rule only applies to Inheritance Tax and not local authority care.

The solution is for couples to simply not leave everything to each other in the first place.

Paul continues: "What my grandfather could have done is leave his half of the house in trust to his children, stating that they couldn't have it while his wife, my grandmother, was still alive. We call these Property Trust Wills.

If my grandfather had left his half of the house in trust to the children then when my grandmother subsequently received care in her later life she would have only been means tested on her own half of the house, but my grandfather's half would have been safe.

Why should he have to contribute his half when he didn't receive any care?

The important factor is that couples need to act in advance. Once one party dies or loses mental capacity, through a stroke for example, they are no longer in a position to do this legitimate and straightforward type of planning.

It is therefore important for couples to act now even if they may not foresee care fees being an issue."

Paul goes on to explain a further important point. Most clients he sees are surprised to learn that remarriage usually cancels a will and makes the new spouse next in line to inherit, ahead of their own children!

Protecting your half of the house in this way, he suggests, ensures that your children ultimately inherit when the survivor dies.

"Had my grandmother remarried after the death of my grandfather the whole estate could have passed sideways out of the family," says Paul.

It's another important reason for home-owning couples to upgrade to a Property Trust Will.

2. Bloodline Trust Wills

The majority of April King's clients have already made standard "mirror wills" with other firms before approaching the firm. A mirror will is when a couple leave everything to each other on the first death, then to the children when the second partner dies. But modern family life means these type of wills leave a lot to chance.

Explains Paul: "If I have a mirror will leaving everything to my wife and she remarries or goes into care after my death then either the new husband or the local authority are likely to inherit most, if not all, of my estate ahead of my children.

Even if my children are named in my mirror will it is by no means certain that they will inherit anything.

Once again, this is because a remarriage would cancel the will my wife had previously made with me and make the new husband next-of-kin. This often comes as a big shock to my clients who had perhaps thought that all was in order and that the family bloodline would one day inherit.

The same is true for thinking that their children and/or grandchildren will one day benefit under a mirror will. If any of your children should die leaving everything to their husband or wife and that son-in-law or daughter-in-law should then remarry, then your grandchildren would be the ones to lose out under the line of inheritance.

Worse still, someone else's grandchildren would be in line to receive the benefit of all your years of hard work!

I've experienced this in my own family and I'm sure most people have had similar experiences or heard of someone who has. Bloodline trusts will give greater protection to your children."

Paul continues: "These things can be avoided by having a bloodline trusts will. Under these types of wills your children have complete control and access to the inheritance they receive from you but give added protection from the twists and turns of modern family life. The wording in these wills states that any money left over on their demise must pass to any children born of them – your grandchildren."

3. Lasting Power of Attorney

Paul explains how people often get confused thinking that, because they have made a will, their executors can also deal with assets if there is illness, stroke or some other form of incapacity while they are still alive.

"Everyone should actually have two documents – a will that deals with their estate on death, and a lasting power of attorney that deals with their estate during their lifetime," he says.

The lasting power of attorney is a relatively new introduction and is divided into two parts – one deals with finance, the other deals with health and welfare. In many ways it's similar to a passport; a document that's registered now and one which can be physically handed to the attorneys should the need arise. It allows the attorneys, perhaps the children, to deal with banks and pension companies etc should their parent become incapacitated, but also to deal with matters such as where the parent should be living and how they receive care. Your attorneys, again perhaps your children, must legally act in your best interests at all times. You can choose a number of attorneys to act, either jointly or independently, and April King advises on the various options available.

Couples are often surprised to discover that even joint bank accounts can be frozen until the bank sees sight of a lasting power of attorney document

Having a lasting power of attorney removes the burden on children should ill-health happen further down the line. It helps a family deal with bank accounts and so on during a parent's lifetime and ceases on death. Crucially, you have to complete a lasting power of attorney while they are still in good mental health.

If someone becomes ill through say, a stroke or dementia, this option is lost and the family would have to apply for a order from the Court of Protection – a drawn out and expensive process. It is therefore a good idea for clients to plan ahead and remove any future burden from the family.

Once again, all adults should be thinking of this, particularly where there are children or a business involved. It's not just something to think about when you get older, that's the challenge for us.

People think 'I'm not ill, why do I need to make a power of attorney?'

But they're missing the point. This is a document that has to be done in advance. Paul adds: "The next part is to appoint the attorneys, your children. Don't forget, your children can be the executors of your will and attorneys as well. The lasting power of attorney remains in place until you die unless you want to cancel it. Once it's registered, you don't have to worry if you then develop some debilitating illness. A burden has been removed from the family at an already difficult time."

The new book by Charles Spencer about the king's escape

The great escape of a fugitive king

WE don't think of the English as particularly rebellious or revolutionary but we killed our king and declared a republic long before the French.

It's just that we changed our minds after a decade of po-faced Puritans and dictator Oliver Cromwell.

King Charles I lost his head in 1649 and his eldest son would have followed him to the block two years later if it wasn't for some brave and resourceful West Midlands folk. Historian and aristocrat Charles Spencer (the Earl, brother of Princess Diana) looks at the young Charles II's desperate escape after the bloody battle of Worcester finally ended the Civil Wars in Parliament's favour.

Catholic

This saw the king and small band of supporters roving across our region, depending on local Catholic families to hide him from the Roundhead search parties.

This included the famous day spent hiding in an oak tree at Boscobel House (hence all those pubs called the Royal Oak) and crammed into a hiding hole at Moseley Old Hall, near Wolverhampton.

In what was becoming the Black Country, with the dawn of the Industrial Revolution, Charles Stuart and his Royalist officers face a night time ride through Stourbridge, where Roundhead troops are based, speaking French so the locals think them immigrant Huguenot glassmakers, as the French Protestant craftsmen are common in the town.

The future 'Merry Monarch' also has banter with a Rowley Regis blacksmith who tells the disguised monarch what a rogue the king is. Luckily for him the king sees the funny side.

Spencer's book zips along with the speed of a thriller as it reveals a fascinating episode of British history which largely took place on our doorsteps.

Kinver, Pattingham, Madeley and Newport also get a mention, as does Wolverhampton where the king's sympathisers learn about Parliament's search for the king. They placed a bounty of £1,000 on his head, in those days a fortune, the equivalent to a lifetime's wages.

Charles emerges as a complex character, a highly self-entitled young man and a womaniser, sometimes self-pitying and sometimes heroic with a sense of humour and apparently a good mimic of the Midlands accent. The real heroes are the Whitgreave, Giffard and Penderel families, and other Catholics, who risked their lives to save the king, paving the way for his return to the throne a decade later.

To Catch A King by Charles Spencer is published in hardback by William Collins, £20.

Memories are stirred by Marlene

Kingswinford TG

AT the monthly meeting held on October 9, chairman Enid Fennell welcomed a new member Val Ellis. Among the correspondence were two letters form headquarters, one urging the guild to participate in bringing the anti-slavery demonstrations to the public notice.

When this was read out, members became were aware that the movement's intentions were not made known to Townswomen's Guilds early enough to enable them to join in, even though TG is very much against modern slavery, having brought the subject to public notice a few years ago. The second letter was also read out and some members made comments.

Sheila Watt sorted out the payments due for the Christmas luncheon at The Lodge. The remaining business was soon completed and the main event began.

Marlene Watson entertained in her own inimitable Black Country style. It was suggested that those who grew up outside the area sat near someone able to act as interpreter, or just laugh when everyone else did.

Some memories were stirred, many of which revealed pearls of wisdom. Brenda Greenaway was thanked for the beautiful floral display, which she donated as an extra raffle prize. Raffle prizes were won by Elaine Skelling and Brenda Adkin. Tickets for the community raffle were on sale.

Sue tells of great Aussie adventure

Dudley South Ladies

Diana White, speaker Sue Langley and Beryl Bury

AT the October lunch at The Lodge, Wellington Road, Dudley chairman Pauline Handley was delighted to welcome a record number of members and one visitor Margaret Adams.

After an excellent three-course meal members settled back to listen Sue Langley's 'Great Aussie Adventure'.

It began with a chance meeting on a cruise when Sue formed a friendship with a couple from Australia who invited her to their cattle station at Albany, three-quarters of an hour south of Perth.

Apart from herding cattle she encountered tiger snakes which her hosts roasted, crushed and scattered around the house, called peppering, to prevent snakes getting in. She moved on to the wine region of Adelaide to stay with relatives and travelled to Kangaroo Island with its white sandy beaches and seal colonies.

In Freemantle, she visited the notorious prison which closed to inmates in 1991, now restored offering overnight accommodation and weddings.

Gentle exercises raise a laugh

Dudley Rheumatoid Arthritis Group

DUDLEY RA Support Group met on October 5 and shared a happy time with Merry Maggie. This consisted of simple exercises constructed in such a way as to raise a laugh. It worked!

At the next meeting on November 2, Chris Smith will talk about the work that goes into producing a magazine. The meeting will be held as usual at The King William pub, Pensnett Road, from 1.30pm. The meeting on December 7 is the annual Christmas dinner at The Lodge. Anyone living with any of the many types of arthritic conditions is welcome at meetings. Call 01902 676136 or 01902 885734 for more details.

Next year's programme starts on February 1 with a talk from one of the doctors from the Research Unit at Russells Hall Hospital.

Kitchens

We can bring the showroom to you

We think a makeover deserves the same level of quality, choice and service as if you were buying a complete kitchen or bedroom.

Your consultants van is equipped with a huge range of samples so that you can actually see what you are getting rather than just choosing from a brochure or website.

You can have confidence in the style, colour, finish and quality. What's more, with our large range you can be confident that you're getting what you want, not just selecting the most acceptable from a cut down range.

Gold standard, as standard

The Makeover Company do things a little differently. As our company name suggests we offer a full makeover of your existing kitchen or bedroom.

Not only do we replace the doors, we can upgrade and reconfigure units to suit your needs as they are today. We can even replace units or add new ones to create a room that works for you.

We can also retro-fit your units with the latest storage solutions to help you make the most of the space you have available.

Less hassle, than a new kitchen or bedroom

Bedrooms

As well as being a lot less hassle than getting a full tear out and fit, it's also a LOT cheaper.

Typically you pay less than half of buying new and have a much less disruptive experience. We are always sensitive to your budget and will always work with you to give you the best possible value.

Simply put, our service is entirely focussed on you and your requirements, not on padding your order to boost our bottom line.

A makeover typically takes a couple of days and we do everything we can to try and keep your Kitchen or Bedroom usable at the end of each day.

We only use very experienced kitchen and bedroom fitters that understand every aspect of how your room works and are sensitive to our customer's lifestyle.

Your consultation

Our advisor will meet with you in the comfort of your own home. They will measure up the units and doors of your kitchen or bedroom and fully access their condition. They will then discuss your requirements and inspirations with you before producing a tailored makeover plan to suit your needs.

We think a makeover deserves the same level of quality, choice and service as if you were buying a complete kitchen or bedroom.

Pam: My show's not just for old folk

Pam Ayres has been a writer, broadcaster, and entertainer for more than 40 years. She is one of the few authors who has had books in the Sunday Times bestseller charts in almost every decade since the 1970s. She is the author of several best-selling poetry collections, including The Works, With These Hands, Surgically Enhanced and You Made Me Late Again!.

And many of her poems are in school textbooks around the world including the UK, USA, China, Australia, New Zealand, Holland, South Africa, Ireland and Singapore.

In 2016, once again, the most borrowed poetry book in UK Libraries was Pam's most recent book, You Made Me Late Again. And this year she's back on the road with a new tour that reaches Wolverhampton's Grand Theatre on Saturday.

Pam is one of the most popular female comedians performing in UK theatres. Her autobiography, The Necessary Aptitude, was the UK's bestselling female autobiography of 2011, and her 2013 book of poetry, You Made Me Late Again, went straight into the Sunday Times bestseller lists.

ROYAL

She has appeared three times for HM The Queen – at the Silver Jubilee Royal Variety Performance in 1977, at a Royal Gala Charity Reception at St James Palace in 1996, when Pam, as the only entertainer, performed part of her solo stage show, and finally at Sandringham Women's Institute in 2004, when the Queen attended in her capacity as President of the Sandringham WI.

Subsequently, she was honoured to be awarded the MBE in Queen's Birthday Honours of 2004.

She is presently performing in more than 30 theatre and festival shows and is delighted to be back.

"I hope it will be fun. I'm on stage for two hours and I'll be using poems and stories and anecdotes and jokes. You have to vary it as much as you possibly can. I'll use old and new poems – things like I Wish I'd Looked After My Teeth.

"I'll use sad pieces too. We moved house after 28 years, which just about broke my heart, and I realise that's a commonly-shared feeling. There's also a piece about when children go to uni and the great gulf that leaves in your life.

"It's new and old. I always try and move it on all the time. I don't go round doing the same thing. I keep a very careful record of what I've said in a particular theatre. I try to write new material all the time and I've had a good writing period last winter."

There's no surefire way to write a brilliant new poem. Pam has to wait until the muse strikes and surf those creative ways.

"The process is waiting and praying for a good idea. That's the crux of it. It's to get a good idea that will strike a chord with lots of other people. Those things aren't that easy to find.

"I've been writing about long distance flying recently, that's come together quite well. It's looking for a good idea, then I work on it in the mornings. I go in each morning and work on the ideas I've got. I try to approach the subject from all sorts of different angles.

"A lot of my time is spent groping for good ideas. When I find one, I'm delighted. I try and do something good with it. You have to find something people will identify with."

Pam's a predominantly older audience but social media has allowed her to connect with a new generation. She is on Twitter and is constantly surprised about the new young people who come along.

"I do little political tweets and a bit of sniping from the sidelines, that's brought in quite an interesting new audience.

A way with words – Pam's tour reaches the Grand on Saturday

She is proud that performance poetry is now mainstream and feels a sense of kinship with new stars.

"I look now at the number of performance poets that there are and I do feel that it's partly down to me. Because I don't know of anybody except Cyril Fletcher who was doing his odd odes, sitting in an armchair and doing a bit of verse, who opened up the doors to it.

FLATTERING

"There was no-one going around with funny poems, using those as the main thrust of the evening. Phill Jupitus said to me 'you are the reason I'm a performance poet'. I didn't set out to be a performance poet. I wrote those things and If I'd been musical I'd have made them into funny songs. But I couldn't do that and everybody fell about laughing when I spoke them and that was good enough. I do feel a lot of people came after me, which is flattering."

Touring is bliss and she finds herself playing in Gibraltar, Althorp and Dubai, among other places. "You finish in all these amazing spots that you'd never in 100 years go to unless you did it for a living.

"I don't like the travel because the roads are busier but I love talking to an audience is great. I'm not as scared as I was at the beginning. If you are successful on a talent show these days you are thrown to enormous audiences before you're ready. Well, I'm not new but I still love it."

Paul Bradley and Jessie Wallace

Soap stars head cast in classic spine-chiller

Former EastEnders stars Paul Bradley and Jessie Wallace head the cast in Ira Levin's classic thriller Deathtrap at the New Alexandra Theatre, Birmingham, next week.

Directed by Adam Penford, it runs rom November 7 to 11.

BAFTA nominated actress Wallace, and Bradley, who is also well-known as Elliott Hope in Holby City, a role he played for 10 years, will be joined by Sam Phillips, Beverly Klein and Julien Ball.

One of the most successful plays in its genre, Deathtrap centres on Sidney Bruhl (Bradley), a once successful writer of stage thrillers, who is in the grip of chronic writer's block. Out of the blue, young playwright Clifford Anderson (Phillips) sends Bruhl one of the only two copies of his brilliant new whodunnit, Deathtrap. Desperate to set Broadway alight once more, Bruhl spies his chance to invite Clifford to his remote country home, bringing the only other copy of Deathtrap with him.

If Bruhl can kill the newcomer and pass the play off as his own, he could once again be the toast of Broadway.

A spine-chiller guaranteed to keep the audience on their edge of their seats, Deathtrap continues to hold the record as the longest running thriller in Broadway history. It was subsequently made into a hit film starring Michael Caine and Christopher Reeve.

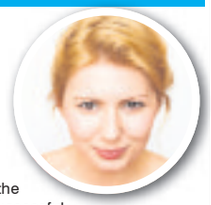
Beautiful story of Carole's rise to fame



A TALENT show finalist has the beautiful role of Carole King in a musical about the songwriter's life. Beautiful – The Carole King Musical is being staged at the Birmingham Hippodrome next week.

It stars Bronté Barbé, pictured, a finalist in Andrew Lloyd Webber's BBC1 series Over The Rainbow in 2010. She has since appeared on stage in both London's West End and around the UK and was last seen locally at Wolverhampton's Grand Theatre as Princess Fiona in Shrek – The Musical. She will be joined by Kane Oliver Parry as King's husband and songwriting partner Gerry Goffin, with Amy Ellen Richardson and Matthew Gonsalves as fellow songwriters Cynthia Weil, and Barry Mann. Life Without George star Carol Royle is King's mother Genie Klein and Adam Howden is publisher and producer Donnie Kirshner.

The Olivier, Tony and Grammy Award-winning West End and Broadway musical tells the inspiring true story of King's rise to stardom, from being part of a hit songwriting team with Goffin, to her relationship with Weil and Mann, to becoming one of the most successful solo acts in popular music history.

Along the way, she wrote the best-selling album Tapestry, which featured the likes of (You Make Me Feel Like) A Natural Woman and You've Got a Friend.

Other classics include It Might as Well Rain Until September and The Locomotion.

Showtimes are at 7.30pm, Tuesday to Saturday, with matinees on Wednesday and Thursday at 2pm and on Saturday at 2.30pm. Tickets are from £18. See bookings. birminghamhippodrome.com

Carol Vorderman pays tribute to inspiring people

The Pride of Britain Awards remind us of the courage which still exists in every corner of the land said Prince Charles – and with that simple statement, he sums up the purpose of this annual event.

The ceremony started life in 1999 with the express intention to celebrate acts of bravery and selflessness from people whose actions would otherwise go unsung; these are ordinary folk with extraordinary stories.

Unfortunately, we're living in troubled times, which means that more such acts seem to have occurred this year than ever before – no doubt those sitting on the panel that decides who receives the trophies in each category have faced a tough time trying to work it all out.

But what each winner and nominee has in common is the fact that they did what they did while expecting nothing for it in return. In fact, they would probably claim they simply carried out a deed that anybody else would have done had they been in the same position.

Those receiving nominations have had their names put forward by members of the public, with the likes of former winner Katie Piper, Good Morning hosts Susannah Reid and Ben Shephard, and Cressida Dick, the Metropolitan Police Commissioner, sitting on a panel to decide who wins what – and there won't be a dry eye anywhere as the results are made public.

As for the famous faces taking part, well, there will be lots of them keen to show their appreciation.

We don't see that much of Carol Vorderman on the box these days, but she's hosted every Pride of Britain ceremony to date and she will be taking charge of this one too, which takes place at London's Grosvenor House.

Others set to participate include David Beckham, Simon Cowell, Michael Caine, Rod Stewart, Lenny Henry and Liam Payne, while politics will be represented by Prime Minister Theresa May and Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn; scientist extraordinaire Stephen Hawking is also expected to feature.

"I'm always delighted to take part in the Pride of Britain Awards," says Beckham. "The winners are always amazing, particularly the children. I think the bravery and courage they show is an example to us all."

"I have been to some awards in my time, but never to an awards like this," adds Caine. "It is the most extraordinary thing."

"There's too much celebrity culture in this country," claims Henry. "Pride of Britain is great because it celebrates people who aren't part of that world."

Among those to look out for are the members of the emergency services and NHS who assisted those affected by the terror attacks in Manchester and London, as well as the Grenfell Tower disaster.

Other winners include a quick-thinking four-year-old who saved her mum's life and a hairdresser whose story has inspired domestic violence victims to fight back.

Ashley Banjo acts as a roving reporter, speaking to winners and celebrities backstage.

BEST OF THE REST

MONDAY
Nigella: At My Table
BBC2, 8.30pm
Nigella Lawson serves up five more easy-to-make dishes, recipes that combine the comfort of the familiar and the exuberance of the new, rustling up her favourite weekend breakfast special in the shape of waffles. She also prepares dishes perfect for laidback entertaining in beef and aubergine fatteh, accompanied by Bulgar wheat with flaked almonds and nigella seeds, followed by her passion fruit ice-cream cake. Late-night inspiration comes in the form of a toasted brie, Parma ham and fig sandwich.

TUESDAY
The A Word
BBC1, 9pm
Return of the drama about an autistic child and his family. Two years on, in the Lake District, seven-year-old Joe is growing up. He has started to notice he's different from other kids. And when he says the word 'autistic' out loud, seeing it as something bad, Alison and Paul know they must talk to their son. But how do they broach the A word with a child for whom language is already a struggle? And how do they respond to the news that Joe is struggling at school more than they thought? Drama, starring Morven Christie, Lee Ingleby and Christopher Eccleston.

Motherland
BBC2, 10pm
Any sitcom in which Graham Linehan is involved will always be worth a watch. But when you add into the mix his wife Helen, Sharon Horgan and Holly Walsh as co-writers, then it becomes a must. Although Motherhood is a far cry from his most famous project, Father Ted, it went down a treat with viewers and critics alike when the pilot episode aired as part of the BBC's landmark sitcoms season last year. Heading the cast is Anna Maxwell-Martin, who clearly enjoys ditching her usual deadly serious roles for something far more light-hearted. She plays stressed-out mum Julia who, in the opening episode, is forced out of her comfort zone when she makes the mistake of agreeing to host a children's party.

WEDNESDAY
Big Life Fix: Children in Need Special
BBC2, 9pm
Eight-year-old Josh from London has a rare condition that means he was born completely blind and is unable to use his school's playground. Ayala, also eight, has cerebral palsy which has severely restricted her movements and makes it difficult for her to play with her twin sister, while 10-year-old Aman was left with severe brain damage following a car accident that has affected her memory, leaving her struggling to remember the teacher's instructions. Now, Simon Reeve is following some of the UK's leading designers and engineers as they attempt to help these three remarkable children with bright ideas ranging from a tactile 'yellow brick road' to a programme that transcribes a teacher's spoken words into text.

Nigella: At My Table, Monday, BBC2, 8.30pm

THURSDAY
Sam Smith at the BBC
BBC1, 8pm
In the space of five short years, Sam Smith has gone from struggling singer and chorister to one of the world's biggest pop stars. Ever since he featured on Disclosure's breakthrough single Latch in 2012, Smith's rise to the top of the music tree has been phenomenal. Last week, he released his eagerly awaited second album, The Thrill of It All, the follow-up to his multi-platinum selling debut, In The Lonely Hour. To celebrate, Smith has recorded this hour-long entertainment show in which he is accompanied by his band and the BBC Concert Orchestra to perform old and new tracks in front of a live studio audience. Presented by Fearne Cotton, the programme will also feature an interview with the singer as he discusses his career, music, and his much talked-about private life.

FRIDAY
Live International Football
ITV, 7.30pm
England v Germany (Kick-off 8.00pm). Mark Pougatch presents all the action from the friendly at Wembley Stadium, as the hosts begin preparations for the World Cup against the holders. The sides last met seven months ago in a friendly in Dortmund, when Lukas Podolski's goal in his final international gave Germany a 1-0 win despite an encouraging performance by Gareth Southgate's men. Joachim Low's side also prevailed by the same scoreline when they nations last faced each other at this venue in 2013.

A pub welcome with open Arms

FANCY a trip out to the countryside for some wholesome pub grub, great service and family-friendly atmosphere? If the answer is yes, you really ought to try out the Hinksford Arms.

The huge beer garden, vast selection of drinks and reasonably-priced menu should be enough to entice a family out to the greener side of Kingswinford. And when your 10oz rib eye steak is cooked to perfection too, it really does tick all the boxes.

Although we live around five miles from the pub, we hadn't realised it was there until a colleague mentioned it was definitely somewhere to try out.

We certainly thanked her for the recommendation because our visit to the venue in Swindon Road really was a lovely way to spend a Saturday evening in the autumn sunshine.

MUSIC

Sitting outside enjoying what I suppose you'd call an Indian Summer, our daughter, Annabelle, aged three, was able to blow off some steam on the wooden climbing frame, which sits in the middle of a huge, grassy beer garden.

One word of warning, if you're planning on eating later than 6pm when live music is on, it's probably best to check when food is being served until as they sometimes close that room early.

Once inside we were handed the menus by a friendly waitress, who really went out of her way to cater for us, ordered another drink and had a look at what to order. It was the classic pub menu so we knew exactly what to expect really, which is sometimes really refreshing.

For starters my wife Kelly went for the stuffed flat mushrooms, which came with either bacon and Stilton or tomato and brie – she went for the first option – and

Start up – pâté of the day served with rustic bread

Pub hub – The Hinksford Arms in Swindon

I choose pâté of the day, which was served with rustic bread. There was certainly plenty to share between two adults and a small child

When it came to the mains, unfortunately the salmon was off the menu, which Kelly had her heart set on, but she was still happy to try the pork medallion stack with black pudding, which came served in a wholegrain apple sauce with mashed potato and seasonal vegetables.

That, in turn, stumped me a little because I had my heart set on that but thought it would be worth trying two different meals at the very least, so played it safe and went for the rib eye steak.The fresh, home-cooked food is served all day every day, whether it's a quick lunch or a family meal, but all the pub classics, sandwiches, ciabatta and food from the grill is all cooked to order, which keeps it nice and fresh.

The main reason my eye was drawn to the steak was probably because on our actual anniversary a few days before while living it up in Rhyl, I had ordered a one and it had been served completely over-cooked and the meat was also tough.

I ordered the steak medium rare and it was served perfectly. Kelly was delighted with her main too, with the pork also tender, the black pudding tasty and a little spicy, the mash smooth and creamy, and the wholegrain apple sauce rich and tangy.

Annabelle went for her usual option, tubes of pasta covered in a nice, tangy tomato sauce, served with two warm pieces of garlic bread. She enjoyed every bit and still had room for a children's strawberry ice cream, which we all ended up sharing as we were pretty full by then.

MG's new compact ZS SUV

With sales of compact-SUV and small crossovers continuing to grow across Europe, up 10 per cent in the first half of 2017, MG Motor UK has increased its offering in the market with its all-new MG ZS. A global car which has been re-engineered specifically for the UK audience, the MG ZS demonstrates MG's continued commitment to design excellence, engineering innovation and affordable style.

Available from UK dealers now, the MG ZS has already attracted significant attention since it was officially unveiled at the London Motor Show earlier this year. The intervening six months has seen thousands of people register their interest in the car, with dealers expecting this to translate to record sales figures.

With the entry-level model available on the road from just £12,495 the MG ZS also launches with a host of competitive finance offers.

Coming with one of the longest fully transferable warranties in its class, the MG ZS offers a seven year/80,000-mile warranty as standard across all variants, testament to MG's confidence in all-round quality.

The MG ZS is a global car with a distinct British feel. Completely reengineered by the UK engineering team, this MG ZS has been tested on UK roads and developed for UK drivers. As such, the Excite and Exclusive models come with three power-assisted steering modes – Urban, Normal and Dynamic – which are designed to give the driver complete control over their ride.

The MG ZS comes with most of the 'extras' as standard. An industry-leading 8" touch sensitive infotainment screen is supported by DAB radio (on the Exclusive and Excite models), while Bluetooth hands-free and remote central locking is available across the range. Cruise control is also included, while air conditioning comes as standard on Excite and Exclusive models, and Satellite Navigation and a rear camera are standard on the Exclusive variant.

The MG ZS is a global car with a distinct British feel

MG also offers Apple CarPlay on the MG ZS Excite and Exclusive variants at no extra cost.

With one of the most generous shoulder, leg and headroom capacities in its segment, the MG ZS offers a premium travelling experience for driver and passenger alike. 448 litres of boot capacity (60 litres larger than the typical compact-SUV) – plus a split-level boot – provides plenty of room.

Customers can choose from a 1.5 DOHC VTI-tech, four-cylinder engine with smooth and responsive five-speed manual gearbox, or a 1.0 GDI turbocharged, three-cylinder version of the engine which complements the six-speed automatic gearbox option to produce a fast-paced and dynamic ride for drivers looking to experience a little extra.

With a larger fuel tank than the equivalent Nissan Juke, the MG ZS offers increased range, less need to fill the tank, lower CO2 emissions and an improved performance – with the MG ZS delivering 1-100kph in 10.9 seconds, compared to 12.0 seconds for its rival.

Having been tested to extremes in Sweden at minus 35 degrees Celsius, Spain at 42 degrees Celsius, Austria at exceptionally high altitudes and Wales in the typical British drizzle, MG is confident its Compact-SUV can stand up to any challenge.

Kodiaq is well up to the challenge

By Carmel Stewart

The Kodiaq SUV has the task of breaking new ground in the ever-expanding, highly competitive SUV market as Skoda's first ever seven-seater. And it is well up to the challenge.

As we have come to expect from Skoda, it covers pretty well all bases when it comes to choice – five engines (three petrol; two diesel), five trims, 2WD, 4WD, manual or DSG automatic transmissions and five or seven seats. Those two additional seats are standard in SE L trim and above and can be folded down into the floor when not in use.

The long wheelbase and short overhangs of the Kodiaq allow for a reasonable amount of interior space and, although the middle row of seats can slide and fold, there is a high transmission tunnel which means piggy-in-the-middle will have to share foot space with those on either side.

In addition, the rear two seats are really only suitable for smaller members of the family, or for the school-run.

For a size comparison in the Skoda range, the Kodiaq is slightly longer than the Octavia, while in the SUV segment as a whole, it sits between the Hyundai Santa Fe and the Kia Sorento.

The most economical of the engines tested was the robust 150ps 2.0litre diesel linked to the seven-speed DSG transmission which clocked an official average of 56.5mpg. Average economy of the smaller 1.4litre 150ps petrol unit was a touch under 40mpg and offers a nimble, composed and enjoyable drive. Well matched to the six-speed DSG, it tackled the steepest of inclines with ease.

Ultra-modern connectivity is a high priority in the car

Choice will come down to usage. For those who put in the miles and expect the Kodiaq to earn its keep, clearly the diesel will tick all the boxes.

For school runs and city centre commutes, the petrol will more than suffice.

Options well worth considering include the Drive Mode Select which allows the driver to adjust the engine management, gearing ratio and power steering input to suit varying road conditions.

Ultra-modern connectivity, while not on everyone's list, has been given a high priority in the Kodiaq, with the inclusion of the Skoda Connect online service which integrates all the traffic flow, Google Earth, fuel stops, parking info and the like, as well as an automatic emergency call in the event of an accident. In addition, a very useful app alerts the owner to any unauthorised movement of the car.

Fun stuff to look for as you check out the trim levels include umbrellas in the door panels, ice scraper on the fuel cap, foot-activated power tailgate and rechargeable torch.

The Kodiaq range has a starting price of £22,190 for the S trim, five-seat, 1.4 litre 125ps manual petrol rising to £36,135 for the top spec seven-seat Edition, powered by the 2.0 litre 190ps diesel, 4x4 with the DSG transmission.

This Fiesta is hot and absolutely epic

By Anthony Martyn

Ford took one of the best cars it has ever made – the Fiesta ST – and improved it. More power, new suspension and improved steering have all been added to the already impressive mix, and let's make no bones about it, the result is absolutely epic.

You actually have to be a little bit of an anorak to differentiate the ST200 from the standard ST, because they actually look pretty much identical. Both get the same wide honeycomb grille and the same oversized roof spoiler, but there is one big giveaway.

That Storm Grey paint job is your only option when it comes to picking out your ST200, and as you can't have it on a normal ST, it's a bit of a tell-tale. It'll certainly draw the attention of any boy racer who knows his cars, although whether that's good or bad is a matter of opinion. When said boy racer does come snooping, though, he'll spot a few subtler features than the paintwork. Those black alloys, for example, are model-specific, as are the red brake calipers that lurk behind.

Inside, there's another big clue in the shape of the massive ST200 badge that sits proudly on the centre console, while the more knowledgeable observer might also spot the grey trim on the supportive Recaro seats.

Because the ST200 is just a Fiesta, it comes with all the practicality of a normal 1.0-litre EcoBoost. Room in the front is plentiful, but adults wouldn't want to sit in the back for too long, thanks to a spine-twisting lack of rear headroom. In truth, though, rear passenger space is an issue for most of the Fiesta's rivals, so it's unfair to criticise too much.

The Fiesta's boot space is relatively competitive, too, if not quite on a par with the class leaders. At 290 litres, it's far larger than that of the Polo GTI and just two litres smaller than the Seat Ibiza Cupra's luggage bay.

Boot space is relatively competitive

To drive, the Fiesta ST is brilliant, but the ST200 is on another planet. Let's deal with the speed first, because we can quantify that. As the name suggests, the ST200's 1.6-litre turbocharged engine produces 200 metric horsepower, or 197bhp, which represents an 18bhp increase compared with the basic ST. It's more complicated than that, though, because a transient overboost function means 212bhp is actually available for short periods.

The result is a 0-62mph time of 6.7 seconds and a top speed of 143mph. It may not sound like a big improvement on the ST – a car only two-tenths slower to 62mph and just 4mph behind at full chat – but the ST200 does feel much meatier thanks to increased torque and shortened gear ratios.

It sounds great, too, thanks to some glorious whooshes from the turbo wastegate when changing gear and a twin exhaust that produces a fruity bubble when the pedal's depressed even slightly.

Storm Grey paint job is your only option when it comes to picking out your ST200

More impressive, though, is the way this car goes around corners. The steering weight is almost perfect, the balance is sublime and body roll is controlled in just the right measure. You've got plenty of grip, too. If you want to enjoy any one of the world's greatest driving roads, this is the car to do it in.

It's still pretty capable if all you want to do is get to work, though. The ride is firm and informative without being too uncomfortable, and you've got all the usual practicalities of the Fiesta. Ford even claims it'll manage 46mpg if you're careful, but if you've bought an ST200, the chances are you won't be careful at all.

The ST200 is an incredible piece of kit, but it isn't cheap. It'll set you back £22,745, which is more than enough to buy you a reasonably well-equipped Focus. In fact, it's the same price as the basic Focus ST-1.

That means that for the same money you could have something that's two-tenths faster to 62mph, breaks the 150mph barrier and offers more practicality.

Alternatively, you could save about £3,000 and buy a really well-equipped Fiesta ST-3, which would be just as practical and only slightly slower than the 200.

Doing that, though, would leave you in the knowledge that one day, maybe years from now, you'll be overtaken by an ST200 and you'll wonder what might have been.

A road-focused car but one that will scamper off road very happily

By Jupiter this unique Suzuki Jimny sells itself

By Ian Donaldson

How about this for a Suzuki car sales pitch: "We don't put any effort into selling them".

As a bald statement it might drive the car maker's marketing department into a frenzy until you hear the rest of the statement from the mouth of a senior Suzuki person: "We always sell 1,000 of them every year because there's nothing else like it."

When you learn this steady – and apparently easy – seller is Suzuki's tiny but off-road focused Jimny you may begin to understand why there's little reason to push the car into the salesroom spotlight. For the Jimmy is clearly not a car for everyone. Not for most people, to be honest, but for that loyal band of Jimny believers nothing else will do. No wonder most of them keep their cars for seven or eight years – before swapping for a new one.

This is the sort of loyalty a car maker can normally only dream about, although they'd be happier if the cars were chopped in for new ones a bit sooner, of course.

And there really is nothing like a Jimny to meet a very specific set of requirements. Put simply, a Jimny must drive pretty much like a road-focused car yet cheerily scamper off road at its master or mistress's command.

Crucially, too, it must not cost too much to buy or run. How about £12,999 for starters, which buys a car

The car skips over ruts and wades through streams with pukka four-wheel drive capability, right down to a low ratio gearbox that lets this light and modestly dimensioned machine skip over ruts and wade through streams with the near certain knowledge it will emerge like an eager spaniel; shrugging off the mud and eager for the next challenge.

The Jimny is but part of a Suzuki range that takes in five models with differing degrees of off-road competence, all bearing Allgrip badges on the back but coming with three levels of expertise in the wild.

At the top of the Allgrip tree sits the Jimmy with its 'Pro' rating, taking in the already mentioned low ratio gears and adding a locking differential – the sort of kit that singles out the truly committed mud plugger.

One down in the Allgrip hierarchy comes 'Select', which lets the driver put the car (selected Vitara and S-Cross models) into mud or snow settings via rotary controller between the front seats and turn them into the sort of vehicle that will tackle a slippery hill (up or down) without panicking driver and passengers.

Around one in three Vitara and S Cross buyers take their car with the Allgrip option, a figure that drops to fewer than one in ten when we move down the range to Ignis and Swift models, which come with Allgrip 'Auto'.

This demands no extra actions from the driver but will push drive from front to rear wheels if it detects slipping from the front. You'd never know anything was happening, but you'd be glad on a snowy school run.

But back to the Jimny. Slipping into the driver's seat is almost like entering a time warp, when cars were simpler and smaller. There is a pared down feel to the dashboard and not a hint of executive style plushness. Rather, it is solid and simple and feels like it would last forever.

You quickly get used to the lack of width, discovering that there really is enough space between you and your passenger on one side and the door on the other. This intimacy pays off in spades when the rock strewn track ahead narrows to a couple of donkeys' width.

Keeping front and rear wheels close to one another makes the Jimny delightfully maneuverable.

As well as with its size the Jimny shows its age with a 1.3 litre petrol engine that puts out enough CO2 to earn it a stiff £500 tax slap on first registration and provides modest performance on the smooth stuff. A top speed of 87mph and 0-62mph time of 14.1 seconds put it firmly in the slow lane – which simply doesn't matter for all the Jimny owners who love their cars. They're also unlikely to be bother by an official fuel consumption of 39.8mpg.

Every Jimny has DAB radio, heated door mirrors and front electric windows. The higher spec SZ4 (£14,299 or £15,299 with auto transmission) adds air con, leather and cloth front seats, alloy wheels and tinted glass in the rear.

Race aces Sam Gwilt, Owen Brown and Liam Harthill on the podium

Sam Gwilt lands a telling blow in his bout with Martin Sammon

Priory are a big hit in and out the ring

PRIORY Park Boxing Club are warming up for their next venture following a successful debut on the international stage. The Dudley-based outfit hosted an England versus Ireland clash at The Copthorne Hotel in Brierley Hill that saw the club's boxers take on fighters from the renowned Olympic Boxing Club in Galway.

And the event proved to be a huge hit inside and outside the ring much to the delight of chairman Paul Gough. The night served up a series of high-quality contests in front of a crowd of around 300 with the hosts emerging victorious thanks to victories from Ben Collins, Connor Jones, Jarrod Grant, Tyriq Allison, Tomas Grygkiewicz and Sam Gwilt.

But as well as gaining plaudits for their efforts in the ring, Gough has been delighted with the feedback from the Irish visitors regarding the hospitality on display.

Gough left no stone unturned in his bid to ensure the Olympic contingent enjoyed their stay in the Black Country with a Go Karting night getting the boxers revved up for action. "It was one of the biggest events we have put on as a club, we had never staged an international contest before," said Gough. "But it was a great success and the feedback we have had from Olympic has been outstanding.

"They travel all over the place for fights but they said they had never been treated like this and looked after so well. That's nice to hear and huge credit to our club.

"It was an expensive show to put it on and it would not have been possible without our sponsors – Richardson Capital, Barclays Bank, Willows Construction and Virtual Guard – so a massive thank you to them. We put all their fighters, coaches and officials up at The Copthorne for two nights. We really went out of our way to look after them.

Lords of the ring – Priory Park boxers ready for their contest with Ireland's Olympic BC

Training

"We picked them up from the airport and then took them to our gym for a training session, and then took them out for some food.

"On the first evening we had a Karting competition at Halesowen, which went down really well and then had some food and drinks after. The lads absolutely loved that. We even had three Priory lads coming first, second and third in that, which was great.

"The Olympic lads had some down-time the following day before the show and then they were driven back to the airport the day after. A lot of hard work went into organising the show but it was worth it. It was great experience for our lads, as we will be going over there to fight next year in the return match."

The standard of boxing also impressed Gough, who doubled up as match-maker with Olympic coach Mick Mogan. "All the bouts were close and the quality was very high," said Gough. "Olympic are the No.1 club in Ireland and have won just about every competition going. One of their lads, Mike Delaney, is a four-time national champion and has won a bronze for GB.

"Their coach Mick Mogan trusted my judgement in matching up the fights and I trusted his. And it worked out because there were some great fights. As well as the international fights, a number of other contests made up a 15-bout bill with the youngest boxer aged 10 and the oldest 24, and we had around 300 people in."

Gough has designs on promoting further international shows in the future and may look north of the border.

"It has whet my appetite for more shows like this and I would love to do an England-Scotland-Ireland contest. That could be one for the future," he said.

As for the immediate future, the club are staging a development show at Brierley Hill Civic Hall on Saturday where there will be plenty of action featuring just Priory Park boxers.

And while the club's boxing contingent continues to grow, Gough also runs various fitness classes at the club's Priory Road base.

"The club is thriving at the moment. Our membership is rising and I am continually getting texts and calls from people asking if they can join," he said. "But it's not just about boxing. We also run various fitness classes at the gym and the parents also get involved. It's like one big happy family."

Tickets for the development show are available priced £15 and £10. Call Paul Gough on 07883 012981.

SPORTING FEATURE

By Nick Elwell

"I would love to do an England-Scotland-Ireland contest. That could be one for the future"

Deeney antics spark the wrath of Hughes

FORMER Walsall striker Troy Deeney has been told by Stoke City boss Mark Hughes he "should know better" after sparking a late melee in Watford's 1-0 home Premier League defeat.

In stoppage-time Stoke put the ball out of play after a player went down injured, but rather than pass the ball back the Hornets captain appeared to attempt a cross into the visitors' penalty area.

Joe Allen reacted angrily but found himself being grabbed by the face by the burly Hornets striker as players from both sides squared up. Deeney and Allen were booked, but Stoke boss Hughes was less than impressed by Deeney's conduct.

"I thought it was a bit unnecessary," he said. "Clearly we kicked the ball out and the right thing to do in the spirit of the game is throw it back.

"Deeney, the captain of the club, should know better but he shaped to play it into our box and that's why Joe reacted. I've seen pictures of raised hands and thumbnails in faces which is totally unnecessary."

Woakes the all-round fit to fill Stokes' void

ENGLAND all-rounder Chris Woakes has vowed to help fill the void left by Ben Stokes on the Ashes tour. Stokes has not flown out with the rest of the squad to Australia, having been suspended following an incident outside a Bristol nightclub in September.

The 26-year-old Durham player has not been ruled out of the five-match Test series which begins in Brisbane on November 23, but he is out of consideration for selection until further notice.

Captain Joe Root has suggested England are preparing to play the entire series without him, meaning Woakes and Moeen Ali, and wicketkeeper-batsman Jonny Bairstow, will have to replace those lost runs.

Great Barr-born Woakes said: "Losing Ben as an all-rounder means myself, Moeen and I suppose even Jonny have more of a chance to prove our worth. I take my batting as seriously as possible. I know I have been batting at nine in recent Test matches but whenever I have played for Warwickshire I have obviously batted a lot higher than that."

Event is all a-bout Olympic fighter

THE world's first-ever Punjabi MMA fighter is to visit the West Midlands next month for a charity event.

Olympian and UFC heavyweight Arjan Singh Bhullar will take part in a meet-and-greet event in Birmingham on November 25.

The Indo-Canadian fighter will also tell his life story at the event, which has been organised by the Wolverhampton-based Showfighter group.

Bhullar, aged 31, is currently ranked world number 19 in the MMA heavyweight division by the MMA World Ranking website.

The event is at The Hagley (Ibis Hotel) on Hagley Road, Birmingham. Funds raised will go to the Jet Singh Trust.

Bhullar has represented Canada internationally as a freestyle wrestler at several world championships, at the 2010 Commonwealth Games and at the 2012 Olympic Games. He is from Richmond, British Columbia.

In August 2014, Bhullar had his first amateur fight as a mixed martial artist. He turned pro in November of that year.

Free entry to Glassboys for servicemen

Stourbridge 1 Basford United 0

BOSS Gary Hackett praised his tweaked Stourbridge side for emerging with a 1-0 win from their 'hiding to nothing' against Basford United.

The Glassboys were made to battle by a team who are unbeaten and top the division below with a 100 per cent away record. But the win puts Hackett's men into the second qualifying round of the FA Trophy and a tie at St Neots FC on November 11.

Aaron Forde settled the scrappy clash, guiding inside the far post from close range after 61 minutes following strong work down the right by Kennedy Digie and Luke Shearer.

"It has been a testing week," said Hackett. "We were on a hiding to nothing. Our home form has been a bit disappointing so I was very pleased to get through and keep a clean sheet."

Armed forces personnel can watch Stourbridge FC for free this weekend. The Glasssboys' clash with Witton Albion at the War Memorial Athletic Ground is the last home game before Remembrance Sunday and club officials are keen to show their support to Armed Forces personnel.

A spokesman said: "As a token of the club's gratitude for all those who have served to keep us and our country safe over the years, we are offering all current and former servicemen and women free entry to the match."

Servicemen or women should show ID confirming they have served in the forces or their Royal British Legion membership at the turnstiles.

A bucket collection and sales of 'Stourbridge Remembers' poppy pin badges, at £3 each, will go towards the Royal British Legion.

Opportunities at home and abroad

THERE were racing opportunities for athletes from Dudley Kingswinford Running Club both near and far at the weekend. Close to home a group travelled to Wolverhampton for the Coven Canter 10k, a race hosted by Wolverhampton & Bilston AC.

Tim Rowe placed 58th of 101 in 52.12, Lisa Perkins finished in 1.05.32 and Andrew Perkins stopped the clock in 1.09.38.

Another group travelled to Bridgnorth for a tough 10k starting in High Town before dropping down towards the river and inevitably climbing to a High Town finish. STOUR AIM FOR A PERFECT 10

Stourbridge 33 Sedgley Park 31

STOURBRIDGE made it nine wins from nine this season in a high scoring bonus point match.

This game was always going to be a thriller against old adversaries from Whitefield, Manchester, in third place and fielding a young but strong squad.

The hosts sparked the game off with Joe Heatley's 10th try of the season on 48 seconds after Stourbridge kicked off the match heading into a strong wind.

Tigers hit back five minutes later with a try of their own scored by the hooker Maher.

Stour's Jack Lea crashed over for the next score, close enough to the posts for Chris Scott to add the extras.

Stour Charlie Jeavons-Fellows was yellow carded on 23 minutes before Sedgley's loose head prop Nathan Rushton scored out wide and Stephen Collins landed the conversion.

Stour regained the lead through Josh Trinham, converted by Scott, then Nick Murphy scored his second try in two games. Scott again converted and Stour had a bonus point with 30 minutes gone and 14 men on the pitch.

The 14-point gap Stour held at half-time was quickly reduced when Rushton scored his second try, Collins converted and the comeback was on.

The hosts were next to score with Lea going over for his second, which Scott slotted over.

But Sedgley Park hit back by amassing 12 points in the space of just seven minutes. Callum McShane's try was converted by Collins, then centre Oliver Glasse crossed. Collins' kick went wide but the visitors were one score away from victory and still 22 minutes remained.

Stour clung on, though, and travel to Dore Moor to face Sheffield Tigers on Saturday.

An Alex Jones try, converted by Tom Mitchell in the dying seconds gave Stourbridge Lions a draw in a pulsating clash after Worcester Wanderers had gone 17-10 up with two minutes to go.

Yeltz knocked out of Trophy at first hurdle

Grantham 1 Halesowen 0

HALESOWEN went out at the first hurdle in the FA Trophy in Lincolnshire.

Grantham started the livelier from the first whistle and Daniel Platt was called on to save from Michael Hollingsworth in the third minute.

Danny Bragoli had Halesowen's first shot at goal on eight minutes but it went wide and two minutes later Grantham's Lee Shaw found himself through on goal but was denied by Asa Charlton.

John McAtee sent a free kick in on 21 minutes after Yasin Al Massry was brought down but the shot was weak and easily saved by the Gingerbreads' goalkeeper.

Grantham took the lead on 51 minutes when Curtis Burrows saw a shot blocked but Jordan Hempenstall followed up to score.

Yeltz sub John Hill put a half volley over the bar and McAtee went close.

Match won after draw for captain

IN the five board against Droitwich in the Worcestershire county division 2, Stourbridge Chess Club were ahead 1½-2½ following wins for Jeremy Humphries and Steve Alcock and a draw for Colin Woodall.

A draw for captain Paul Sharratt gave Stourbridge the match.

The Birmingham division 2 team, who had won both matches so far, travelled to South Birmingham for a very tough match with boards 3-6 all outgraded by about 15 points.

First to finish was Sam Bradley on board 6 who agreed a draw but this was followed by a Stourbridge loss on board 3. This meant the team had to win at least one of the remaining games.

On board one, Nic Fallowfield went into an endgame with rook, bishop and six pawns versus rook, knight and six pawns. They shook hands on a draw.

Paul Sharratt and Julie Wilson were also forced to shake on a draw so Stourbridge were 3-2 down.

This left Zibi Koncki needing to win on board 2. His opponent forced off the last white pawn to leave Koncki with a lone bishop. A draw was agreed and Stourbridge had lost the match.

The Worcester and District Division 2 team played at Kidderminster and won the four-board match 2½ -1½. Richard Wilkinson and Joe Bombardini both won their games and Jeremy Humphries drew. To join, contact Dave Scriven on 01384 423642 or visit www.stourbridgechess.f9.co.uk

King of the road after rally success

DUDLEY rally driver Clive King tasted success in the Historic Rally Car Club Championship. King, aged 59, and his Sutton Coldfield co-driver Anton Bird won their class in the national event.

They were quickest on every stage of the final round on forestry roads in Northumbria to clinch the 1300cc class in their Mini Sport-backed Cooper S.

King and Bird were runners-up in the championship involving more than 2,500 miles of travel during the season.

A retirement on the penultimate round on the Isle of Man denied them an overall victory when the Mini's back axle broke.
